

Cara Collective's Donor Privacy Policy & Donor's Bill of Rights

Cara Collective's mission is to build an inclusive economy by developing employment pathways to advance transformative individual and community success.

At Cara Collective, we value our community of donors. You are an essential partner in this work. After all, it is your generous financial support that fuels this courageous national movement to eradicate relational and financial poverty.

As an organization, we remain true to our core values: Motivation, Affirmation, Community, Structure, and Intentionality; and in keeping with these values, we are happy to publicly share our Donor Privacy Policy.

As a donor of Cara Collective, please know that we promise to protect your privacy in the following ways:

- We will never sell, trade, or share your personal information with anyone outside our organization.
- Every donor has the right to remain anonymous. If you would prefer to remain an anonymous donor, please let us know and we will refrain from including you or your organization's name in our public donor recognition lists (both in print and online).

If you would like to be removed from our public listings or from our mailing list all together, please let us know via info@carachicago.org and we will remove you as quickly as we can.

- If you participate in Motivations at Cara Collective, we will never share the content of your speech with our other supporters without your permission.
